

Art Nouveau Stair Case in the University Library

CAREER PATHS

Our Graduates pursue careers in cultural institutions (e.g. publishing houses, museums, broadcasting, foundations), business enterprises (e.g. banks, automobile companies, travel agencies), in administration (ministries, public authorities), chambers of commerce and a good proportion of our more excellent graduates go on to research and teaching careers in scholarship.

STUDIENGANGSTECKBRIEF (Short Info)

M.A. SINOLOGY: China Global

Degree	Master of Arts
Length of Studies	4 Semesters
Beginning	Winter Semester
Application	Limited Entry
Languages	German, English, Chinese

Enrollment :

■ www.uni-heidelberg.de/studium/interesse/faecher/ostasienwiss.html

CATS

Centre for Asian and Transcultural Studies

Institute of Chinese Studies
Vossstrasse 2, Building 4120
69115 Heidelberg

■ <https://www.zo.uni-heidelberg.de/sinologie/>

Zentrale Studienberatung / Career Service

Seminarstraße 2 (1st floor) · 69117 Heidelberg

■ <https://www.uni-heidelberg.de/studium/kontakt/zsw>

Serviceportal (Informationen rund ums Studium)

(General Information about Studies at Heidelberg University)

Seminarstraße 2 · 69117 Heidelberg

Mo-Thu 10-16, Fr 10-14

Telephone 06221 54-5454

Mo-Thu 9-16, Fr 9-13

Fax 06221 54-3850

E-Mail studium@uni-heidelberg.de

Internet ■ www.uni-heidelberg.de/studium/

CATS
Center for Asian and Transcultural Studies

INSTITUT
FÜR SINOLOGIE
海德堡大學漢學研究所

UNIVERSITÄT
HEIDELBERG
ZUKUNFT
SEIT 1386

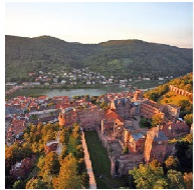

MASTER SINOLOGY

Global China

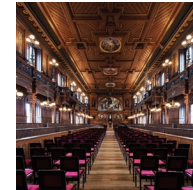

The Old University Building

A View of Heidelberg

Auditorium in the Old University Building

HEIDELBERG UNIVERSITY

Founded in 1386, Heidelberg University is Germany's oldest university and one of the most research-intensive in Europe. More than 30,000 students are enrolled in the twelve faculties of "Ruperto Carola". With its more than 150 degree programmes, Heidelberg offers a unique variety of possible subject combinations. Ruperto Carola thus offers optimal conditions for individual and interdisciplinary study.

Studying in Heidelberg

With its large international student body, the city of Heidelberg is characterised by its lively atmosphere. Its central location in the middle of the Rhine-Neckar metropolitan region, with important business enterprises and high-ranking scientific institutions, offers many networking opportunities, even beyond your studies. Embedded in a beautiful city at the end of the Odenwald valley, the university offers a rich variety of extracurricular opportunities: a wide range of cultural activities, a variety of sports and a sizeable number of world-famous excursion destinations.

Studying Global China at CATS

Founded in 1962, the Institute of Chinese Studies is part of the Center for Asian and Transcultural Studies (CATS). Here, Asia is studied in a global context, and through interdisciplinary dialogue. With six professorships in different subfields, the Institute of Chinese Studies in Heidelberg is one of the largest of its kind in Germany. Global China can be approached from multiple perspectives, ranging from ancient history, archeology and philosophy to contemporary politics, and from religious, musical and literary cultures to the economy. Studying in this Master's Program, students are able to explore multiple facets of one of the most dynamic civilizations in the world.

The 6 Professorships and their Research Foci:

- Ancient History and Archaeology
- Intellectual History
- Buddhist Studies
- Cultural Studies
- Modern Cultural History in an East Asian context
- Contemporary Politics, Economy and Society

The Study Program

Our Master's program in Sinology—Global China is designed to offer students from around the globe multiple perspectives on Greater China (including Hong Kong and Taiwan) and its global connections both in the past and in the present. This helps students deepen their previously acquired knowledge of China and East Asia, improve their language abilities, and further develop their personal interests in two different study foci: Politics, Economy and Society or Language, Culture and Tradition.

We offer language courses in Mandarin, Taiwanese and Cantonese, alongside Japanese and Korean, and we teach classical and modern Chinese. Throughout their studies, students will be introduced to a multiplicity of innovative research tools and methodologies from different disciplines, including Transcultural Studies, in order to frame their research appropriately.

The Master's program in Sinology—Global China is a postgraduate program. Applicants must hold a BA or equivalent (minimum three years of study) in Sinology/Chinese Studies or a related field. Proficiency in Chinese and English, and a working knowledge of German and at least one more language is required.

Students are encouraged to spend their third semester abroad on study exchange or to conduct a research-oriented internship. They can benefit from partnerships with many Chinese and Taiwanese Universities. Study exchanges to other Asian and European countries are also possible.

